Dear Senator Casperson and Senate Committee on Natural Resources, Environment and Great Lakes,

I am against the gray wolf being named as a game animal in Michigan. Problem wolves can already be killed legally in Michigan. There is no reason to hunt them. Animals that aren't eaten should not be hunted. The gray wolf, just recently delisted, is an apex predator that is important to the environment. I hope Michigan is better than the states where wolf hunting has been legalized. Those states now face tourism boycotts and legal challenges. Please do not abide by the wishes of a small, vocal group of sportsmen who do not represent mainstream hunters.

Sincerely,
James Winkowski
