

Committee Members:

Please, any of you legislatures, show some sanity about this wolf hunt fiasco that has suddenly become this great quest in the northern great lakes states. The wolves are no danger to anyone. Wisconsin and Minnesota have already jumped into approving (and actually conducting) seasons of unreasonable length, with unreasonable rules that guarantee the extinction of the wolves in this part of the earth. Leave Michigan alone, as a safe haven for the wolves where people who simply enjoy the fact that they can exist, or at the most be photographed by people like me. There are already many locations where the sportspeople you seem to want to cater to can indulge their desires or show off their prowess and marksmanship.

Leave some small portion of our beautiful north country for nature, the wolves, and people like me as a sanctuary.
